STILL SOARING

For over a quarter of a century we have excelled in athletics, academics, and most importantly, Eagle Pride. As the 1987-88 school year began, we were determined to continue Skyline's fine tradition of excellence.

A wide variety of activities has encouraged us to take the time to get involved and make the most of our high school years. We have always gone out of our way to support teams, groups, and our fellow peers. High expectations for the future are what give us the motivation to set and achieve our goals. In this atmosphere, we are inspired to spread our wings and accomplish our dreams.

High school provides both the best and worst times of our lives. That is why it is important that we take advantage of them and make these years worth remembering. With this in mind, 1987-88 has become our year to dominate because we are...

S SHADES OF

School finally ended, and the long anticipated three month vacation began. For most people, the hottest season of the year was viewed as a time to just kick back and obtain a dark tan line. However, some saw summer as time to make money by working full time, while others chose to mix work with play.

Unemployed students retired to the outdoors and became professional sun worshippers. They were found lazily lounging next to clear blue water with a Pavex protecting their lips and a shiny bronzed bodies day after day.

Several students chose to travel as far as Japan to be foreign exchange students. Others vacationed in Utah at Lake Powell. Some ventured across the Atlantic and toured Europe.

Summer vacations were different for each student. But, it really didn't matter how the summer was spent, either laboring in the professional world or partying in the sun, summer went by far too quickly.

weekend

The countdown of the week wound down and it was finally Friday. It was time to relax and forget about the burden of homework until nine o'clock Sunday night.

Many students chose to get involved in school activities such as games and stumps. Not only were these events a huge social gathering, but they also allowed students to demonstrate school spirit. Tension was released by yelling, slam dancing, and enjoying the freedom that had just begun.

Trekking through the wilderness was yet another form of escape. The greatest snow on earth occupied many students throughout the long winter months. Others hiked, camped or just went for a picnic in the fresh mountain air.

Dates ranged from elaborate outings to simple get togethers. Those fortunate enough to have jobs were able to treat their date to a nice dinner and perhaps a movie. Many unemployed students resorted to cheap dates. These included possibly a cheeseburger and fries and if luck struck, the couch might have been available for watching a video.

For those dateless students on the weekends, movie theaters came in handy. Pick up joints such as Leatherbys or the Pie made some of these 'lonely' students lonely no more.

For the more grade conscious students, studying proved to be the main attraction of the weekend. Sitting by the fireplace on Saturday night with that favorite textbook, enriched students. Gaining all that knowledge made the sacrifice of a weekend well worth the learning experience.

As Monday morning drew closer, frustration set in as well as the memory of homework. The fun-filled weekend began to fade away and once again the countdown began.

HOMECOMING DOMINATE IN 88

One of the most anticipated occasions of each school year is Homecoming. It has always been regarded as a time to develop pride for the school.

After week long activities, an assembly continued to build enthusiasm. The crowd was entertained by videos, live on stage acting, and performances by some of the school groups, such as the J.V. Band. Slides allowed the student body to capture picture perfect memories of past activities.

As the football team tore through last year's theme banner and a new one was lowered, the auditorium was filled with cheers. "Dominate in 88" was displayed on a huge 54 x 8 banner designed by Stacey Thoram, Kim Herzog, Rose Lindsey, and Sara Silman.

The celebrated week of Homecoming came to an exciting conclusion when the thrill of victory was experienced once again with the Eagles creaming the Colts 46-13. While Skyline continued to excel, excitement ripped through the evening as all students released their pride for the school.

Forever Young

Homecoming ... a time for making memories as well as remembering the past. For one week the Skyline student body had the opportunity to participate in activities that would be remembered for a lifetime.

To make the week unusual, the halls were decorated and music was played between classes. Lunchtime activities provided a way for everyone to become involved. Burping contests, giant Twister games in the courtyard, and seeing "how low you can go" in Limbo contests brought excitement to the half hour lunch break.

Students and alumni attending the dance Saturday night found the school's gym transformed into a world of elegance. Under the direction of co-chairwomen Connie Dotson and Kristin Hammer, the normally barren walls were decorated with light blue and pink. Accents of wicker enhanced the theme. "Forever Young."

Homecoming gave each person the chance to become involved and develop pride for the school. A lot of time and energy was put forth to make sure this week in September would never be forgotten.

Eagle Pride

Eagle Pride in 1988 was more than merely excelling; it was unity, supremacy, and complete dominance. Individuals exhibited superiority in academics, as well as athletics.

With each game, the bleachers continued to fill as support for athletics grew. Student involvement was displayed by attendance at various activities. Pre game events such as face painting and car decorating increased school spirit.

The rivalry with Olympus was heightened this year with the famous rock at stake. "Rocking Oly" became a reality with a 39-7 victory over the Titans. The rock was returned to Skyline after its eight year absence.

Dominance was found both on and off the field because students believed in excellence. Eagles recognized each other as individuals, but more importantly, they took pride in their school.

What is your T-shirt saying?

There are many different types of T-shirts. Some are plain, some have designs, and some have messages. The most common type of T-shirt is the plain white T-shirt. This type of T-shirt is often worn by athletes and is a staple in many wardrobes. Other types of T-shirts include graphic T-shirts, which have designs or logos on them, and message T-shirts, which have text or slogans on them. T-shirts are a popular and versatile piece of clothing that can be worn in many different settings.

SIDELINE SPIRIT

J.V. CHEERLEADERS

Jumping, cheering, and being rowdy was an understatement of enthusiasm that the six junior varsity cheerleaders brought to the sidelines. In addition to bringing with them enough spirit for everyone, they believed in the junior varsity teams.

The squad met each morning over the summer to practice. Working on cheers, stunts, and getting to know each other was the main purpose of the practices. Even though at times the cheerleaders had their doubts about getting along, they turned out to be great friends. "Now we're just like one big happy family," commented Angie Watson.

During the football season, the J.V. cheerleaders joined the Varsity cheerleaders to perform at pep assemblies. "We felt it was our responsibility to root the varsity as well as the J.V. teams to victory," stated Portia Early.

The spirit and unity expressed throughout the athletic season provided the student body as well as the teams extra school support. The cheerleaders agreed that the year was what they expected: Full of good times and many, many hours of dedication.

"We've got spirit! Yeah! Yeah!" rang through the air at every pep rally. To prove this cheer true, students let loose and built excitement for athletic events. "Skyline's school spirit definitely made a statement. Pep rallies really made all of the activities a lot more exciting," stated junior Kim Wright.

Before the rivaled games of each season, the cheerleaders got together to plan an assembly to help boost enthusiasm. "Pep rallies really contributed to people supporting the teams and that support created our renowned school spirit," commented head cheerleader, Tauna Halterman. Skits, raps, and singing the school song along with many original cheers all helped to build the excitement. From decorating cars to throwing candy into the audience, an increase in school spirit was achieved.

The reputation of pep rallies being boring and a waste of time was diminished this year. Support continued to prevail as students, officers, and the administration joined together to prove that Skyline is the best. In a quote from the Brighton Barb editorial, Skyline's school spirit was commended. "It never dawned on me how much crowd support can do for a team. I recommend that Brighton students visit a Skyline game and find the true meaning of school spirit."

STUDENT ACTIVITIES BOARD

At the beginning of the school year, John Storheim, Student Activities Board President, selected fifteen innovative individuals to serve on the board. The group met before and after school to "brainstorm" for ideas that would make the year memorable.

The group sacrificed several Saturdays to decorate the halls for spirit weeks. They served on dance committees, counted ballots, and reviewed assemblies. "It was a lot of work, but it was fun," stated Secretary Pegi Sansom.

John Storheim, President, remarked, "S.A.B. doesn't get a lot of glory because no one really realizes how much time we put into the organization." Through their ingenious ideas, the S.A.B. involved the entire student body in school activities.

SENATE

Senators at Skyline took on the responsibility of "maintaining and interpreting the constitution of Skyline High." With three elected representatives from each class, the Senate met and discussed the school constitution, helped organize assemblies, and got involved with political issues.

The Senate met the needs of the student body by listening to the opinions and concerns of students. They promoted school spirit and supported the teams, clubs, and organizations at Skyline.

The students worked hard to contribute their ideas toward the future of Skyline. Sometimes going unnoticed, the Senate took an essential role at Skyline and had a big influence on the school and its activities.

Friendships

TOGETHER FOREVER

Friends are the most important aspect of high school. The first relationships outside of the family are formed with friends and through these relationships one grows into maturity, gains self respect, and finds security.

Through all of the ups and downs, a comfortable feeling is found in knowing that you are never alone. When life gets too hard and frustration piles up, a compassionate confidant is just a phone call away.

For many, school was simply a place to spend time with each other. When the school day ended, they could be found eating, shopping, or just talking together. Weekends were spent skiing, partying, and laughing with each other. Mike Moore accurately described a friend as "some one who knows enough about you to hurt you, but doesn't." There are no secrets inside a true friendship, and that's what makes it so comfortable.

A friend listens intently to problems. It really doesn't matter how big or small the problem, they just listen and try to understand. With a touch or a word, friends make you happy.

In the times of frustration, sorrow, and loneliness, a friend always seems to come through. When the rest of the world appears to be walking out, a true friend walks in.

Left: Brent Peterson, Danny Sandwall, Paul Jensen, and Jason Bertola experience a close embrace of the third kind. Above: Rachel Gosselin and Carol Richardson show off their pearly whites.

MEN'S ASSOCIATION

Have you ever wanted to know what a real man is? Well, you'd probably get the best answer from the president of the Men's Association, Calvin Scharffe. Under Calvin's direction, the men of Skyline worked alongside the student body officers to keep school interesting.

The men risked their lives scaling suicide rock to keep the "S" in good shape and provided the student body with the generator used to light the "S". The activities sponsored during M.A. week included the return of the famous M.A.S.H. Bash and Bachelor Party.

"I think that we did a pretty good job, getting the students involved," commented Sr. Rep. Jared Nelson. Working hard to make 1987-1988 successful, the M.A. officers helped make the delicate transition from boy to man an enjoyable one.

WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

Due to the superiority of Skyline's women, seven officers labored to represent the female population. "The theme, Pride in Perfection, served as a guide to display the excellence in each woman at our school," stated President Mindy Christensen.

Planning activities for W.A. week and dance kept the officers busy. Vice President Jolynn Udy explained, "We wanted to increase the awareness of W.A. We also wanted to let the women know that they make a difference."

One of the more popular events sponsored by this group was Powder Puff football. After weeks of practice, the seniors were victorious at both Eagle Fest and Olympus games.

Through activities such as luncheons and teas, the Women's Association gained a reputable name. The combination of personalities managed to make a simple phrase into a powerful motto. By taking pride in perfection, the women proved their excellence throughout the year.

BANDS

the art of noise

Playing everything from reggae to old time rock and roll, student bands rocked Eagles during assemblies, lunch, and pep rallies. The reasons people had for playing in a band were as different as the music each one played.

Musical ensembles of students played during lunch in the courtyard to receptive audiences. One of the reasons John Rampton, lead singer of the Poets gave for their popularity and success was, "Students like us because they can become one with the band." Rick Bentley, bass player and backup vocalist for the group added, "We encourage the other students to become involved." "Sam I Am just plays in Rich's basement," said Ryan Smith, bass guitarist. General Authority, a mixed school band with Bill Dent, and Brett Turville, formed because the members were interested in music as a career. The reggae playing Bogus Heads just jammed to pass time.

The notorious Batter Bowl started playing together in March of 1987. "We played everything from classic rock to modern music," commented guitarist Eric Dodd. They played for parties and were occasionally paid.

Originality made up the personalities of musicians at Skyline. The talented individuals who made up the bands at Skyline entertained for different reasons and in very different styles.

REMEMBER WHEN

CHARLES F. HARRIS, JR.      MISS M. NEWELL

Taking a big step up from the crowded, obnoxious sophomore hall, the class of '89 moved up. Being in the middle of it all, the juniors could relax because they didn't have to worry about college; yet, they were still a part of the 'higher' social class.

With one more year to go, the junior officers, Ryan Smith, Brent Spencer, and Ken Staker, approached the year with a new outlook. They created new activities, including the snow sculpture contest and tailgate parties. For the second year in a row, the officers continued the Boys' Pep Club. "Our goal was to increase school spirit and involvement, and I think we did," commented Ryan Smith, President.

Through the organization of new and unusual activities, this year's junior officers made the year unforgettable. The class of '89 moved up with success and left the others behind.

Above: Angie Peterson realizes that her fly has been open for half the day. Left: Kevin Nigbur was stunned when he found out that he had to draw unclothed models.

Kim Christensen, Vice President, Kevin Nigbur, President, Angie Peterson, Secretary

After being elected in the fall, the sophomore officers began to plan instantly for the 87-88 school year. The leaders focused on becoming acquainted with the class members and involving them in school functions. Creating sophomore week, a stomp, and participating in the Christmas assembly were only a few of the many activities the 10th grade class contributed to during the school year.

Under the direction of Kevin Nigbur, President, Kim Christensen, Vice President, and Angie Peterson, Secretary, the class of '90 was guided into a productive year. "It was a team effort," explained Angie Peterson. "everyone wanted to get involved and have a lot of fun!"

When the new arrivals entered Skyline, they soon found themselves able to adjust to the promising future. They showed spirit at athletic events and strived for academic excellence. They kept old friendships, yet they managed to break away enough to build new ones. Furthermore, sophomores found what was needed to be called an "eagle."

FACULTY CREATING CLASS

“The most rewarding thing about teaching are the weekends and the summer vacation.”

That’s how Mr. Charles Adams, history and psychology teacher, because of teachers like him, the faculty dedicated with humor and intelligence.

Sixth grade teacher taught a wide variety of subjects that ranged from home economics to earth science. Each teacher planned lessons, kept periods and was responsible for educating about 100 students a day.

Sixth grade teachers did more than just provide education; they became involved in the lives of students. Some even became friends.

Because of their unceasing dedication towards education, the faculty helped students achieve their goals. They also ensured that Eagles could go out into the real world and make something of themselves.

DOING THE DIRTY WORK

Feeding 280 people nutritious meals each day along with cleaning, sweeping halls, and washing lockers kept the cafeteria and custodial staffs busy. The eleven custodians and eight cafeteria ladies improved Skyline not only for the benefit of the student body, but for the public.

"Because we enjoyed the students, the atmosphere, and working with the food, the job was pleasing," stated Dixie Anderson. Preparation for nutritious and delicious lunches began promptly at 6:30 and clean up didn't end until 2:30. Feeding students was a full time job.

The main obligations of the custodial staff were repairing major equipment, sweeping halls, and cleaning restrooms. Their responsibility was to make Skyline presentable.

Both staffs agreed that without the cooperation and appreciation received from the students and faculty, the jobs would have never been done. Skyline's appearance, along with the quality of its lunches were, to say the least, outstanding.

PRINCIPALS FROM THE HIGH CHAIR

Overseeing 16 new teachers, 1,200 students, attendance policies, and school activities, the administration worked as a team to run the school. The principals were committed to helping the students and faculty have a prosperous year.

"Skyline is an easy transition from Olympus because the students are polite and they strive for academic excellence," stated Mr. Hutchings, the new vice principal. He also commented that in 28 years of being in the educational system, he has never seen the spirit that he's found at Skyline.

Dr. Betty Yanowitz was also impressed by the student body. She added, "Skyline has kept to the tradition of hard work and preparation for a higher education in the future." All three principals enjoyed seeing students through an education and handing them their diploma at graduation.

The main duty of principals was to keep the students in line. This year the administration strongly enforced policies against smoking on school grounds and patrolled the halls during classes to catch the "sluffers."

"Overall development and achievement made Skyline outstanding," commented Mr. Richards. The involvement from the principals strengthened the commitment from students and faculty members to make the 87-88 school year even more rewarding.

COUNSELORS

A WORD OF ADVICE

Three counselors were added to the administration this year. Along with veterans Perry Gillette and John Stevens, Mr. Woody Whitlock, Mr. Neil Weight, and Mrs. Linda Briggs joined together to help students.

After advising at Granger for seventeen years, Mr. Whitlock transferred to Skyline. Mrs. Linda Briggs, a new-comer from Taylorsville, was the only woman on the staff. Mr. Weight commented about his move, "It's like a new career. It has given me a chance to work with a success oriented student."

Perry Gillette and John Stevens completed the staff. Mr. Gillette recruited transfer students and arranged in-school college visits. Mr. John Stevens worked in the career center advising seniors as to what colleges to apply to.

Being concerned about the future of students, these advisors worked for the students. As a result of all the extra effort, many students were granted scholarships, college credits, and many doors to future careers were opened.

In the main office, Mrs. Sadie Yoshimura scheduled appointments for the administrators and placed and answered telephone calls while she managed the mail. Mrs. Desmond managed the bookstore along with the school's finances. Memos and letters were typed by Mrs. Parker.

Mrs. Talbot, Mrs. Murdock, and Mrs. Nelson kept things organized in the counseling center and the career center. Despite all of the hard work, their jobs were more than rewarding. The tasks the secretaries performed were vital and it was because of them that the year ran smoothly.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Even though the Board of Education sometimes went unnoticed, the organization played a vital role in the 1987-88 school year. Under the advisement of Superintendent John Reed Call, five members served on the Granite School District Board of Education. Special tribute was paid to John Reed Call for his excellent service over the years in the field of education. He was replaced by Superintendent Loren Burton when he retired at the end of 1987.

Each member committed themselves to hold an office voluntarily for one year. Gary G. Swensen served as president along with Lynn P. Davidson as vice president. Other members included J. Dale Christensen, Judith Larson, and Patty G. Sandstrom.

The group took on many responsibilities such as revising and establishing school policies, rules, and regulations. They determined how to best spend the taxpayers' money and basically maintained Granite School District's exceptionally high standards.

Parents, teachers, and students joined together once a month to plan and prepare for an eventful school year. Along with Back-to-School night, activities such as Critical Issues which displayed everything Skyline had to offer, kept this group busy.

For the second year, a Student Advisory Board consisting of nine students was formed. Led by Rob Barnes, the student body was well represented. "This year's student board really improved by supporting the school. After all, it was a larger student body they were representing," commented Rob.

The PTSA raised money for scholarships which were awarded to graduating seniors. They also provided an opportunity for each opinion to be heard and taken into consideration. President Marilyn Oswald stated, "We wanted to supplement the curriculum by adding programs that we thought were worthwhile."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Summing up the emotions of ten foreign exchange students at Skyline was Maria Chavarri from Spain, who exclaimed, "I like American life." These students entered host homes and found families. At school, they made lasting friendships.

Listening to music, attending movies, and going skiing became popular pastimes for the students. They participated in everything from the Jazz Band to the volleyball team, maintained above average grade points, and mastered the English language.

Kosuke Akagi, an exchange student from Japan, said, "I wanted to see the real America." Christopher Wentworth from Norway chose to come to the United States because he "wanted to learn the language and meet new people."

Through the foreign exchange program, different customs and traditions were formed. A new understanding between the cultures was attained amid lasting bonds of friendship.

The construction of the 1986 school directory started last spring. Several people greatly aided in the project, such as the advanced word processing (Word) and typed in the names, addresses, and phone numbers of the entire student body.

This past year was extremely rewarding considering the increased enrollment. The staff spent an average of two hours a day during the summer correcting spelling errors.

Editor Karlee Winkler stated, "We wanted to make it a fun book. The Skyliner gave the students reliable information. As Dan Lucher commented, 'This book is everything you need. Kind of like a little black book.'"

GIFTED & TALENTED

From Skyliner students, new ideas were generated by both teachers and students.

quickly became a success. Organized by Mrs. Collins, the new organization helped students pursue their interests.

Every day during seventh period, the students explored different areas and shared them with the class. Each member has benefited by going more in depth and studying the subjects which interested them the most. The class helped each student decide what field they wanted to dedicate the rest of their lives to. This is not an academic class, commented Mrs. Collins, "it is a class where students can pursue their own private interests." Not only did the class open new horizons, but it also helped each student understand their own areas that were of some interest to them.

A Fashion Statement

Students modeling the latest fashions at the Di Tono fashion show.

Sweaters, sportswear, leather, and many other fashions were displayed at Di Tono. Under the supervision of Mercy Buttorff, over 130 fashion merchandising students put together a successful fashion show.

By popular demand of the students, Di Tono, the Italian word for stylish was chosen as the theme. "Fashion shows are in this year. It is popular to sell the merchandise through these shows and we wanted to mimic the market," stated Ms. Buttorff.

Fund raisers, such as selling candy bars and Dining Plus books helped cover the expenses. Because of the success of the show, enough money was made to allow smaller shows to be presented during lunch throughout the year.

The participants learned the meaning of hard work and they also had a chance to work with people they might otherwise never have met. As Katherine Richards commented, "Everyone was involved. We all worked together so it was everybody's production."

WHEN QUALITY COUNTS

In 1969-70 Pam Jensen organized a group called the LaNichees. This year the group has become a skilled squad with unlimited possibilities.

The LaNichees showed their devotion to their sport by practicing mornings, both during the summer and throughout the year. Drill mistresses, Debi Hansen, Wendi Comarell, Paula Nielson, and Tiffany Partington choreographed original marches. These entertaining marches required a sense of timing and exactness.

"LaNichees provided me with twenty-one of the best friends I've ever had," stated Diane Barnes. This year's drill team worked extremely well together. Advisor, Pam Jensen explained, "The personalities blended so well together. Everybody was willing to give and take."

Presidents, Diane Barnes and Rachel Gwilliam, promoted unity and enthusiasm by organizing everything from uniforms to "psych nights." Sleep overs at the football field usually ended with some type of excitement, such as water balloons or shaving cream.

While having fun, the LaNichees concentrated on perfecting their performances. They supplied a source of pride for the school as they worked their way to the top. They succeeded in representing Skyline to the best of their ability.

SPIRIT BOOSTERS

PEP CLUB

Good friends, leadership, and a huge amount of school spirit were what Pep Club was made of this year. It took a lot of work and new ideas to achieve its goal of putting the nickname "Dog Squad" to an end. Each individual sacrificed her summer sleep in order to be at school from six to nine every weekday morning, as well as some evenings putting together original drills to perform in front of the fans.

This year's Pep Club displayed devotion showing up at games and practices without the encouragement of an advisor. It was tough at the beginning with no advisor to have around representing real authority, but soon we became our own bosses, earning one of the hardest drills on our own," commented Holly Harmon.

Pep Club supported the football and basketball teams by attending every game, yelling and cheering its loudest. Being sharp and looking good were our main goals, and I think we achieved them," exclaimed Janine Russel.

This year, Pep Club had excellent leadership with president Cindy Burt, vice president Erica Peterson and secretary Jodi Skanich. The drill mistresses included Daphne Pedersen, Kaylyn Farley, Andrea Eari and Megan Bown, with a total of 41 girls on the squad.

When a permanent advisor was chosen, the Pep Club had already overcome the difficult work and was headed in the right direction. The advisor, Mrs. Julie Bubier emphasized, "It was a great year, we had a really independent, committed group of girls, to tell you the truth, they could have done it without me."

Seventeen creatively different individuals composed quality literature daily during first period. Under the advisement of Mrs. Stenchecker, the staff organized the poetry and art of the student body into the Satorian, the school's literary magazine.

Students tried to maintain their individual originality, yet remained receptive to the creative efforts of others. Floor sessions allowed for the acceptance of new concepts among friends. In a floor session, the staff sat on blankets in a circle around burning incense and candles. After the dark atmosphere was created, the group shared poetry along with thoughts and feelings.

The staff encouraged the entire student body to submit original art forms to the magazine. They wanted to make the book more than just the effort of a single class, they wanted it to reflect the emotions of the entire school.

At the end of the year the staff with co-editors Chris Borg and Wendi Longstroth published a widely read and enjoyed book of student art. The Satorian was a paper remnant of what most people blindly passed by.

HORIZON

The Horizon played a very important role at Skyline. Despite all the last minute "unexpected" disasters, each Horizon issue came out better than the last.

The staff consisted of thirty-seven people who worked well together. They got things done, and were able to meet the difficult deadlines "Deadlines are tough ...", commented Chris Aggeler, the editor-in-chief, "that's the hardest thing in Horizon."

The staff wanted to give the newspaper a "new and better image" than years past. With a new mast head and intriguing articles, they achieved it. "I hope it informed the students about their own school and challenged them to think," exclaimed Clarann Jacobs, the advisor.

The Horizon staff tried to "dignify" the students by putting as many names in the newspaper as possible. Eleven issues were put out this year by the organization of Chris Aggeler, editor-in-chief, and page editors, Jeff Simmons, Dustin Morris, Lena Gandhi, Elahe Mostaghel, Roger Young, Karlee Wirthlin, Connie Dotson, and cartoonist, Mike Moore.

This year's Horizon staff worked hard to give students information about the school's sports, teachers, and other students. The staff took a large part in the school, always finishing with an excellent result.

Body Language

In May of 1987 the new 'dance clubbers' were carefully chosen. Each member had to have certain qualifications: the motivation and ability to dance.

The dance club consisted of 35 girls with a common bond: the desire to dance. With this attitude, the group was a success. They worked all year, practicing every day for months to make a "new and original" concert. Not only did they have a victorious final performance, but they performed frequently at assemblies. The club focused on the modern and jazz concepts of dance and originally choreographed each routine.

Creatively designed costumes gave the club a new image. Some wore tie-dyed unitards while others wore backless ones.

The Dance Club was under the leadership of president, Kami Lloyd, vice president, Cathy Twitchell, secretary, Misty Ungricht, and publicity, Cheryl Chilcote and Mindy Ward. The advisor, Martha McKay, was new this year and helped organize the group trip in January. The club traveled to San Francisco where they took classes from well known dancers. They explored many different styles of the art to include in the concert at the end of the year.

While the girls worked hard to improve the club, strong bonds of friendship were formed. Misty Ungricht commented, "By the end of the year, we had worked so hard together that lasting friendships were made. We felt so close to each other because we all love to dance!"

KICKING UP THEIR HEELS

"We wanted to change our reputation. The guys thought everyone would like it more if we took it kind-of serious," stated President Danny Sundwall. Two weeks before each performance, these men met both before and after school to practice. A love for pain, lack of sleep, and a sense of humor were all requirements for belonging to this elite group.

As a take-off from the La Nichees, the Langerees made quality count. Roger Morgan explained, "We don't take it half as serious, but we have twice as much fun!"

SAY WHAT?

Bringing new culture and traditions into the lives of Skyline foreign clubs. Language clubs included the French Club, Spanish Club, and new this year, the Latin Club. In addition, a karate club was formed called the Tae Quan Do Club.

"Developing a new, more active French Club was an important part of this year's French Club," remarked French Club President Roni Loeb. Tiedying, attending French plays, and celebrating French holidays were all new activities enjoyed by this year's French students.

Visiting Mexican restaurants and participating in Spanish fiestas were among the various events this year that added to the successfulness of the Spanish Club. Explained President Roy Fannesbeck, "We wanted to get people involved through planning numerous activities that everyone could participate in."

In its first year, the Latin club, which included more than twenty members, exhibited an enthusiastic and positive attitude. "We wanted to promote Latin culture along with the education," commented President Jared Nelson. The opening video-pizza party was just the beginning of an exciting year of new culture.

New this year was the Tae Quan-Do Club (Korean Karate). Almost a dozen students met under the direction of Advisor Loretta Jewkes. Sponsored by community education, club members practiced a minimum of once a week to work towards different belts. A feeling of security resulted from endless hours of practice.

In addition to bringing foreign culture and tradition to Skyline, the foreign clubs drew students together in friendship. Through the various events, students were introduced to new people along with a new way of life.

TOP 3%

Making many sacrifices in order to obtain a perfect G.P.A. paid off for the Top 3% of the senior class. Many received scholarships which were offered to them by top colleges.

Not only did the students keep a high G.P.A., but they became involved in other activities. Traci Rappaport served as yearbook editor, while taking a large part in the National Honor Society. Jeff Simmons became involved with the soccer team while still obtaining superior marks.

These students were successful in many areas, including A.P. classes, yet they still obtained outstanding grade point averages. These advanced classes became a challenge in themselves. These few were rewarded as a result of their hard work.

STERLING SCHOLAR

Representing individual departments, twelve seniors competed in the statewide Sterling Scholar competition. The event honored exceptional students for scholastic and community achievements.

A lot of time was put into preparing essays on questions ranging from personal histories to life goals. Elahe Mostaghel, General Sterling Scholar, commented, "I thought interviews were the hardest part, with essays you can work on what you write, but you can't take back anything you say in an interview."

Not only were these outstanding leaders representing themselves, but also the school. Whatever the motive for becoming a sterling scholar these students received the recognition they deserved.

CONCERTO NIGHT

Mastering the art of music was an acquired ability which took several years of practice and devotion. "Concerto night was a concert which gave amateur musicians a chance to let people listen to what they can play, more than just sound in the background," stated Scott Call. The performance featured twelve solo artists and an accompanying orchestra.

"Overall, it was a successful concert and it let us share our talents with others," commented Mindy Probst. The selections were a variety of classical, Greek, and modern arrangements. Once again the attendance for the evening was supportive and appreciated by all those who enjoy fine music.

Throughout the week, the students campaigned, had elections, and participated in mock legislative sessions. As Connie Dotson explained, "I learned more in that one week than at any other time in my life."

By gaining positive insight into the Democratic system, the students learned ways to provide the most good for the most people. Boy's and Girl's State was a conference designed to prepare the students of today to be the future leaders of tomorrow.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Enriching the Learning Experience

The 110 students involved in National Honor Society not only had to have four solids in their schedule, but they also had to maintain a 3.5 grade point average. Advisor Phil Talbot explained, "There are two main reasons for having N.H.S. First, it recognizes outstanding academic students. Second, it helps to motivate students into getting better grades."

To fulfill service requirements, the members offered free tutoring. They also helped decorate for festivities, such as Homecoming and spirit week. They supported the school by sponsoring a booth at Eagle Fest, directing parents at Back to School night, and helping with registration.

A variety of students were included in the National Honor Society. Laura Johnson, treasurer, declared, "a lot of people think that only nerds join N.H.S., but that is not true. All types of people were involved." Whatever type of person, they all had one thing in common: the ambition to succeed.

DEBATE

SPEAK YOUR MIND

Strengthening the speaking skills and self confidence of students was what the debate program focused on. With the direction of advisor Ronda Nielson, the class helped each member become organized and informed about current events. This year, a new advisor, Mrs. Deyanne Sweeten was added because of the enlargement of the novice program.

There was a total of seven categories in which students competed: Impromptu, Extemp, Student Congress, Lincoln Douglas, Oratory, Expository, and team debate. The class required committed students who were willing to compete with different schools. Mike Baghoomian commented, "Debate overall enables you to be organized and to speak well in front of a large crowd. It helps you get ahead in life because you're able to communicate."

Due to the amount of commitment that was required from the class, the students wound up spending a lot of time with each other. It would not be unusual to see debaters together speaking about current events or arguing about one point or another. The opportunity to speak with one another on a more intellectual level is what brought these students closer together.

Debate was a class which taught the students the art of communication and improved their performance. The program was beneficial during high school as well as later in life.

The natural way

Sitting in a stuffy classroom for nearly seven hours made it feel even better to get out and smell the fresh air. Because a new advisor was difficult to find, students formed this year's Alpine Club by themselves electing Natalie Wernberg as their President.

With new advisor Kathy Christensen, the group organized get away ski trips throughout the year. Each trip helped students cope with the pressures of school by getting away from their problems for the weekend.

The group was comprised of a variety of students who all enjoyed the outdoors. Kristina Thompson commented, "The Alpine Club brought us all together. It was a time to enjoy nature and make friends at the same time."

Science Club

It's elementary

"During the year the science club had one main motive: to make science fun!" stated Mr. Larsen, advisor. Under the direction of Presidents Rob Wirthlin and Stewart Wood, the students explored new and fascinating career opportunities in the science field.

Numerous activities were planned by the science club. The members encountered high energy forces at the Hansen Planetarium "ZAP" show. For the Halloween stomp they created a spook alley. In December, students went to the "Light and Sound" show sponsored by the U of U. Members also visited a chemical factory, and heard guest speakers lecture on various aspects of science. The group concluded the year with a hike up to Mount Olympus.

Memorable mishaps, such as blowing up electrical outlets in Mr. Larsen's classroom were what made science enjoyable. The organization succeeded in providing field trips, challenges, and knowledge throughout the year.

When students joined Key Club, they pledged to serve their school and community. In this service, they gained experience in leadership, friendship, and serving their fellow man.

The Key Club was involved in the annual bowl-a-thon to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Throughout the year they continued to give of themselves by putting on a play at Primary Children's Hospital, sponsoring a dance to raise money for the homeless, and participating in the "adopt a grandparent" program. "It's surprising how many people are willing to serve if you just give them a chance," commented President Mike Brown.

The key Club motto, "Caring our way of life," summed up the purpose of the club. These values will be retained for the rest of their lives.

How "wood" you like it?

It takes some coordination, along with an ability to work with your hands, to be a Vocational Industries Clubs of America member. Consisting of 22 students, VICA contained members that were serious about careers in the vocational industries.

Under the supervision of Mr. Bill Catmull, VICA students watched their industrial skills improve. "Along with teaching vocational skills, we also help the students learn leadership," commented Mr. Catmull. Being a very large organization, VICA competitions ranged from bricklaying and masonry to cabinetmaking. Members competed in many competitions. There they compared vocational skills with people from other cities, states, and even nations.

Resulting from the efforts of both the faculty and students, VICA gained statewide recognition. The hands-on experience VICA students received in the shop gave them a head start in the industrial world

DECA

Numerous hours of research and preparation went into marketing different products in DECA this year. The Distributive Education Club of America consisted of over 200 students who were involved in business, marketing, and fashion merchandising classes.

The club members, under the direction of Mr. Mark Baggaley, participated in various competitions revolving around marketing products. To prepare themselves for competition which began in February, DECA students sold "Dominate in '88" sweatshirts, ran a "bagels in heat" food stand, and put on two fashion shows. In the bowl-a-thon this year, they raised over two thousand dollars, the most in the state, to help muscular dystrophy.

Having the most members of any club, they reflected the great interest Skyline students have in business and marketing. "We try to teach students who are mindful of running a business how to run it," commented Mr. Baggaley. An early attraction to business and participation in the DECA programs gave students a head start in the future business world.

FHA

Sew What?

Seven members took advantage of the Future Homemakers of America club by gaining insight into what domestic life was really like. Important skills, such as cooking, cleaning, and sewing were taught to help members learn to keep a comfortable and organized home.

Guest speakers, such as a nail artist and a former nanny lectured about their past professional experiences in the home. Other activities included early morning breakfasts that the group cooked themselves with advisor Mrs. Beard. "The purpose of FHA is to teach students homemaking skills and techniques," stated President Wendy London.

FHA gave the students opportunities to become domestic in their daily lives. The future homemakers left high school knowing that they could be more competent organizers of their households.

On occasion the teams met to practice for competitions. The teams did exceptionally well in local and state tournaments. They also had high hopes of qualifying once again for nationals, as they did last year.

Whether it be Ethiopia's famine or relations with Russia, the Future Problem solvers were an organization whose time and effort were always put forth to good use.

FBLA Secret of My Success

In addition to the business classes offered at Skyline, the Future Business Leaders of America helped to promote the free enterprise system. When Sheldon Canepari joined, he stated that his reason for participation was "to get a head start in the future world of business."

This year the FBLA officers planned many activities such as a night at the Sports Mall. "We wanted to make FBLA more than just business, we wanted it to be a club of good times and friends," commented Dan Sundwall, President.

The FBLA members performed well in district and state competitions. Students learned through their experiences what the responsibilities of success were. Julie Allred, advisor stated, "In this club we tried to bridge the gap between the school setting and the business world. The Skyline Chapter is off to a great start in accomplishing that."

Under Mr. Tom Stokoe's supervision and direction, eight technical oriented students constructed scenery, directed lights and sound, and basically kept the stage in perfect working order. Without them, the school musical, assemblies, and concerts could not have occurred.

Aside from the numerous duties normally associated with stage management such as moving and painting scenery, the stage crew did the dirty work. They swept the floors of the dressing rooms and were responsible for taking out the garbage. "They are a very hard working group," commented Mr. Tom Stokoe on his "crew".

The technical responsibilities also associated with the stage all fell to the students. They attended every play, musical, and assembly rehearsal along with performers. Their dedication benefited and was appreciated by both audiences and actors.

DRAMA CLUB

Curtain Call

"We've got quite a few extroverts involved in drama this year," stated club advisor and teacher, Mr. Tom Stokoe. That statement, was to say the least, an understatement. Under his direction, Chris Borg served as President of the Drama Club with Wendy Longstroth as Vice President.

The club was slow getting started; it was not organized until mid-January. "We tried to make up for the slow start by actually doing things this year," commented Vice President Wendi Longstroth. The first activity for club members was watching the Shakespearean play, "The Comedy of Errors" in the Babcock Theater.

Aside from the club, Mr. Stokoe taught beginning and advanced drama classes fifth, sixth, and seventh periods. He selected casts for school plays and competitors for drama meets from the club and classes, along with other interested performers.

The actors and actresses performed outstandingly and received superior ratings everywhere they went. The performers were exceptionally talented and put on shows that will always be remembered.

CONCERT CHOIR

IN THE LAND OF LA LA

Bringing together a mixture of select senior voices created the concert choir. Under the conduction of Mr. Miller, the group looked forward to a year of displaying their vocal talents.

Singing the school hymn at the opening assembly was only the beginning of a year filled with choir performances. In November, the choir sang at the University of Utah Veteran's Day concert. Along with performing during the Christmas holidays at local churches and schools, the highlight of the festive season was an evening performance at Temple Square. They also had a spring concert in April.

During January and February, Mr. Miller held classes after school to tune the students' voices as well as their sight reading abilities. The practices were offered to prepare the students for local, in state, and out of state competitions.

"It was a time to express our talent along with getting to know other seniors," stated Shirlene Parker. Building good times, lasting friendships, and performing throughout the year made the concert choir outstanding.

MADRIGALS AND HIGHLIGHTS

The Highlights harmonized barbershop style while the Madrigals sang with sophistication. Despite their differences, both groups successfully entertained throughout the year, especially during the holiday season.

"To be a great Madrigal or Highlight, you have to possess the ability to get along with others," commented director, Mr. James Miller. Each vocalist willingly donated their time to benefit their talent. Practices and performances were, to say the least, time consuming.

Through the long hours of practice, these musicians had the opportunity to get to know one another. "To give a good show, you have to give the audience the impression you are working as a group. The best way to do that is to be a group of friends and that's exactly what we are," commented Highlight, JoLynn Udy.

Discipline, along with the desire to sing their best, kept the Madrigals and Highlights going. Aside from their talent, the performers had endurance.

We've got the beat

"The difference between a pep band and a marching band is that a marching band goes out on the field and performs, but they do not create enthusiasm. Skyline has a pep band and our job is creating that enthusiasm," stated director, Mr. Richard Chatelain. This year's pep band successfully completed their job. With presidents, Jim Janecek and Mark Humphrey, they involved themselves and the rest of the student body in the games while supporting the teams.

Music added a little variety to the average activity. Student spirit hit an all time high when familiar tunes were played. Without the Eagle band, songs such as "Tequila" from Pee Wee Herman and "The Stripper" would have seemed out of place. Most would agree, the pep band added to this year's domination of the eagle.

JAZZ BAND

TRUE TUNES

Every morning at 6:30 a.m., one could hear jazz music traveling throughout the halls. The band plays in many long hours in order to perfect their talents. Presidents Gareth Ormond and Scott Calk displayed their amount of responsibility and devotion to the band through their superior leadership skills.

Under the advisement of Mr. Richard Chatelain, the band took their talent outside of the school and competed in festivals around the state in February. They received many excellent and superior marks. As a result of their success, the students were rewarded with a trip to Orlando in May, where they attended the National Jazz Band Festival. Heather Eiman commented, "It's a lot of fun, and we worked hard getting up every morning, but it was worth it."

Varsity Football

"The thing about us is that we're a team," commented Scott Gordon.

Despite all of the injuries and long hours, about fifty of Skyline's biggest and fastest guys played the grunt filled game of football. Their dedication and determination to dominate led to their success.

Some of the season highlights included a Homecoming win against Cottonwood and coming away from both Highland and Brighton avenging last year's losses. Nevertheless, the most memorable moments of the season were taking the rock back from Oly, tying for the Region Three championship, and of course, capturing second place in the State Finals.

Bryce Doman, Brian Hughes, Paul Putnam, and Rand Reinhold were selected as members of the All State Football Team. Outstanding individuals, the superior coaching staff and the leadership of captains Brian Hughes, Jim McKenna, and Paul Putnam, created an incredible year.

Coach Dupaix summed up his feelings about the '87 season with, "This is the best team that I have had the privilege of coaching. They are winners. They represented Skyline both on the field and off the field in a way the community, school, and their parents can be very proud of."

Finishing third in Region three, the men's varsity team overcame numerous obstacles to achieve their title. "Everyone was involved in every win," commented Co-captain Tim Gardner.

"Our tallest player was only 6'4" tall and that was with his shoes on," stated guard Bryce Doman. The team compensated for their lack of height with "quickness." Various injuries plagued the team throughout the season. The player determination to dominate remained constant, despite their injuries.

The athletes achieved academically as well as athletically. Two players, Greg James and Ken Staker, were selected for the Academic All State team. This meant they maintained a grade point average of 3.9 or better, and took difficult classes while participating in basketball.

Because of their success in region the team went to the state playoffs at the Huntsman Center. There, they walked over Weber, finishing with a score of 77-45. Bingham High needed two overtimes to bring an end to the Eagle basketball season. School pride and team support remained even after the loss.

"Our confidence was shot at first when we lost and it took us a while to get it back. By the time we got it back, the season was ending," said center Brian Hughes. The fans expected a lot from the team and the players met their expectations, concluding the season with a four game winning streak.

ZONED FOR VICTORY

Preparing for their Varsity year, the J.V. team members trained with the senior players to improve their skills. They received experience that proved to be beneficial.

With a record of 14 wins and 5 losses, the J.V. team rallied to maintain an exceptional record. Playing smart and unselfishly were some qualities that led their team to an outstanding season. "They kept battling back and felt that they couldn't lose," commented Coach Steve Cramblitt.

The Junior Varsity's season exceeded the coaches' expectations and proved their ability to come from behind and win. With the majority of their recognition coming next year as Varsity players, the coaches are expecting another successful season.

SHARP SHOOTERS

Fresh out of junior high, the sophomore basketball team leaped into high school feet first. Relatively inexperienced in higher competition, Coach Steve Marlowe took this young group of basketball players under his wing and turned them into a team.

"There was a lot of work and improvement that will help them as juniors," remarked Coach Marlowe. Although the sophomores fell short of their goal to be region champs, they did obtain a third place finish. As the year progressed, the players learned to work together and believe in each other. Looking forward to next year, the sophomore team was happy to put their first year behind them.

“There was no stopping them,” commented Coach Joan Burdett of the volleyball team. They bumped, set, and spiked themselves to the well deserved 4 A title of state champions.

The team consisted of eighteen members, including co captains, Ginger Rathbun and Laura Warnock, known throughout the state as “the twin towers.” Ginger and Laura were both selected for All State, with Laura being chosen Most Valuable Player in the state.

It took the Lady Eagles less than an hour to defeat Bountiful for the State title. In response to the victory, Laura Warnock stated, “It felt good, but it was kind of anticlimactic. It should have been a better game, but it just means that we are on a higher level of competition than most teams.”

Coach Joan Burdett summarized the team’s feelings about the final game and the season. She claimed it really didn’t matter how close the matches were. “Taking first place has been our vision,” commented Coach Burdett. The team’s commitment to ward winning led to their championship.

Wrestling Take Down

Under the expert coaching of Dennis Preece, Larry El-dracher, and Leonard Garcia, eleven wrestlers achieved victory on the mats. Despite the small size of the team, they practiced hard and became champions.

The team practiced daily after school for two and a half hours. Occasionally, they worked out on Saturdays. Coach Dennis Preece claimed, "The boys had a slow start, but they paid the price and it worked out." This year's squad was young and relatively inexperienced; this, however, didn't limit their enthusiasm for the sport. Despite many injuries throughout the season, the team's determination to win never ceased.

Because wrestling is an individual sport, D.J. Christensen stated, "If you lose it's your own fault." Ken Moses described wrestling as "mind against mind, body against body." Although the competition was centered on the individual, the team worked together.

Captains Tom Campbell, Mike Orr, Shane Sieverts and Jeff Vantassell led the team to placing in both region and state competitions. Coach Dennis Preece summed the year up with, "This is the most remarkable team I've ever had the privilege of coaching."

Taking region for the eighth time in a row, the cross country team ended the year victoriously. The group consisted of talented runners who committed themselves to the team.

Under the advisement of Perry Gillette, the team began to train in June, setting the goal of running 500 miles by the end of the season. To achieve this, the students participated in long, hard practices every day. Excellent leadership was displayed with captains Steve Hornbaker and Heather Bray.

The reward of the fourth place title in state did not come easy. They were continually striving to stay conditioned and in excellent shape. They trained for perfection and, consequently, placed in every meet. As a result of their perseverance and determination, the cross country team was a success.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE!

Track RUNNING WILD

Sprinting, shot put, javelin, long jump, and distance running were the events in which the track team competed. Coach Perry Gillette commented, "The effort and commitment from each individual made every track meet a quality performance."

"Even though there wasn't a majority of student body support present at the meets, the motivation from the track team was the unity between the senior runners was especially significant because for three years we have run together and this would be our last year to prove ourselves," stated Steve Carlton. In addition, they demonstrated their talents by placing at Idaho's sprint tournament.

Overall, the cooperation between the coach and the individual members strengthened the spirit within the team. Steve Herrbaker explained, "Track gave me a feeling of pride, Eagle pride."

HEAD, SHOULDERS, KNEES, AND TOES

Kicking, dribbling, and passing the soccer ball became a popular sport again this year with both men and women. The soccer athletes of Skyline worked diligently to improve their skills and, in return, received the reward of many victories.

Year-round practices helped to develop their playing abilities. During the winter months, the athletes played indoor soccer. But as soon as the temperature went up they were playing the sport outdoors.

The men's varsity team was made up of both returning seniors and some new faces.

For the first time this year a women's soccer team was formed along with players from Wasatch and Churchill Junior Highs. To become equal with the men, the women had to perfect their talents.

This year's team was successful with many wins to prove it. "I love the sport. I've been playing it since I was a kid, and I'm still playing it, so that should tell you something!" commented Jeff Goodwin. The athletes committed themselves not only physically but mentally, making the year triumphant.

WHAT'S ALL THE RACKET?

Tennis

The tennis teams had success on their minds from the beginning. Their regular practices led to domination on the courts.

After a disappointing tie breaker at region, the women's team brought home a third place trophy. This rank was taken to state with optimism. Their optimistic approach led to fifth place in state.

When the Men's team began to play in the spring, they started with a strong advantage: the number on the squad increased. The ambition to be on top, both in region and state, accentuated the goals of the team.

Everyone worked together to give each team the recognition it deserved. The devotion from both teams constructed a feeling of determination, a pathway to follow and improve through the years to come.

TEE'D OFF

On the first day of school, prospective as well as returning students met with Coach Paul Jeppesen on what was the beginning of a successful golf season. Twelve golfers made up this year's team, with each playing a crucial part.

During region competition, the team members played consistently well in all of the tournaments. Their preparation and superior performances resulted in a region championship and a state tournament invitation.

"I think that we had a good chance of taking state but we just didn't play as well as we could have," commented junior, Guy Goddard. In spite of it all, the team came away with fourth place and an individual state champion John Tagge. "I wasn't happy taking fifth in region but I knew that I had a shot in state so I went in and played my best and I won it," remarked John.

"The top players played well and the team as a whole was more confident this year than last," junior, Brad Lortsher stated. The golf team dominated in region and state and upheld the winning tradition of Skyline

When Head Coach Steve Cramblitt awoke on February 27, he was greeted with the news that the groundhog had not seen his shadow. This meant spring had arrived and he could begin to assemble his baseball team. He selected a group of men dedicated to their sport and devoted to success as players.

"We have an excellent group of players in all three classes: sophomore, junior and senior," commented Coach Cramblitt. The long hours of practice each week resulted in expert fielding as well as hitting.

Players soon discovered that it wasn't size or strength that mattered; it was ability and coordination that counted. As Paul Putnam stated, "The hardest and most nerve-racking part of the game was waiting for the right pitch to come over the plate."

Watching and participating in baseball helped cure

ner and spectators. The sacrifices from the players resulted in victory for the team. Baseball proved to be a sport in which the individual could excel with the support of the team.

SPLISH-SPLASH

"Some of the finest students at Skyline are on the swimming team," claimed Coach Steve Marsing. With an average G.P.A. of 3.28 and a trophy claiming the team as region champions, the aquatics club worked to improve each individual member.

With performing their best as their goal, both the men and women took second place at the state swim finals. A state record was set by the women's 400 yard relay team. Members were Becky Cable, Nikki Gillette, Becky Hebert, and Amy Leeper. Other first place winners included Becky Hebert, Amy Leeper, and Becky Cable. The men's success led to the closest point spread ever between themselves and Brighton's first place team. Top swimmers that received recognition included Mark Dewyea, Eric Creankshaw, and Mark Anderson. Throughout the year, swimming, diving, and water polo team members tried to successfully represent their school. The team contributed to the development of the school's continued quality by proving that eagles can also swim.

SEE HOW THEY RUN

Phillip King's British comedy "See How They Run" was performed by nine students who committed themselves to over 10 hours of rehearsal for the production. Each spent hours memorizing lines in order to perfect their given roles. Produced by drama teacher Mr. Tom Stokoe, the school play was presented by the students during the week of February.

Students polished their accents and costumes. Over the course of the two months, the actors spent every day after school in rehearsal.

The play was set in a small English town involving a Russian spy, Aaron Case, and a drunken spinster, Kim Creeper, who eventually became entangled in several comical mix-ups. "We put in a lot of time," commented junior Daniel Prestwich, "but it was a great opportunity to learn to appreciate the school and the many talents within it."

As well as requesting time and effort from the actors, the play also required much time behind the scenes. The elaborate set and props were the work of the senior class. Assistant director sophomore Wendy Sanders offered her invaluable assistance to the cast and Mr. Stokoe. "Without the commitment from these few individuals, this play would have never been the same."

On opening night the students demonstrated their acting talents. After many entertaining for both friends and family. With the great dedication from each student, "See How They Run" was a huge success.

ASSEMBLIES

Keeping audiences entertained and giving people a free period to get breakfast was what assemblies were about. Whether you preferred green M&M's or brown M&M's, assemblies were sure to spark up a chuckle.

The assemblies were found enjoyable by people from all walks of life. Ranging from the West parking lot to the library, attendance was at an all time high.

If you happened to have missed the last episode of Saturday Night Live, no worries matel Roger Morgan portrayed the lovely and vivacious "Church Lady," who did her best to persuade students that Satan had no part in "special" activities.

Student body and class officers took part in the shows. Rob Barnes commented, "I really wish more people would have responded to announcements asking them to participate in assemblies." Even without great diversity in performers, many would agree that assemblies were worth watching. As well as adding some laughter to dreary days by providing such skits as "Name that Butt," "the Nutcracker," and Santa Claus, assemblies allowed students the opportunity to become more involved in school functions.

DANCES

BLACK TIE AND TENNIS SHOES

Ranging from Cheap Date to Senior Prom, dances provided a creative change from the ordinary weekend night. Beginning with Homecoming, ending with Junior Preference, and including several stomps, dances were filled with excitement.

After sending original invitations, dinner was the first stop after exchanging flowers. Places for dinner varied from expensive restaurants to picnicing in a park.

Next on the evening agenda was the dance itself. The Capitol Rotunda, hotel ballrooms, and even the gym hosted dances throughout the year. The evening concluded around 2:00 in the morning after watching a video, seeing a laser show, or playing Polaroid Tag.

Dances and stomps gave students the opportunity to spend time with that special someone. Despite the sometimes high costs, most agreed the evenings were well worth it.

FADS & FASHIONS

According to the American Heritage Dictionary, a fad is "a fashion that is taken up with great enthusiasm for a brief period of time." Some of the "fads" of '87-'88 left as quickly as they appeared. Others, however, lingered and became fashion classics.

Levis could be found on any part of the body. From hair bows to boots, denim was found in every wardrobe. Acid and stone washed jeans were found on both men and women. The more faded the jeans, the better.

Many fashions returned from the past. Mini skirts came back from the sixties in all sizes, colors, and fabrics. Returning from the "hippy" era, common white t-shirts were transformed into bright colored rainbows by the popular process of tie-dying.

Wide belts slenderized the waists of women. Scarves, baseball hats, and cowboy hats covered the heads of students. Swatches, along with Monets and Quartzes, told time in fashion.

All in all, fashion was as diverse as the individuals who wore the styles. Each student chose the look that best fit his or her personality. It really didn't matter if the person sitting in the far left corner of chemistry class wore Guess or Wrangler, fashion was simply a form of self expression.

With the subject of weight loss dominating the minds and conversations of Skyline students, the number of sports club and spa memberships have increased. Saturdays and evenings were spent working out instead of just hanging out.

The Sports Mall and other fitness centers provided a convenient place for athletically inclined students to lift weights, swim, play tennis and racquetball, and work out on the Nautilus equipment. Methods of exercise ranged from late night aerobics on public television to hiking Mt. Olympus.

Health conscious students changed their eating habits, too. Instead of ice cream and French fries, they ate frozen yogurt and salad. Sweat, sacrifice and pain were what constituted the formation of the 'perfect body.'

IN REVIEW

When describing the events that comprised the 1987-88 school year, two words immediately come to mind: classy and creative.

Perhaps some of the greatest accomplishments of the year were achieved by the football team: they helped renew school spirit, took second place in State, and returned the rock to its rightful owners. Dr. Earl left Skyline to work in the state offices. Women finally got the chance to excel in soccer after forming a team. The La Nichees placed first in the Region Three Drill Team Competition and third place in the State tournament. Both the boys' and girls' swim teams left the State meet with second place honors. In Debate, the team retained their Weber State Title and earned several other first place trophies including Region Three. The volleyball team went "one way" and captured the State championship. Both the men's and women's varsity basketball teams competed in the State tournaments. Becky Cable, Nikki Gillette, Becky Hebert, and Amy Leeper set the state swimming record in the 400 free relay. Kim Berry, a sophomore, passed away after a long and courageous battle against cancer.

SOPH. TRANS.

Being a sophomore in high school was a lot like being in seventh grade again; it was a big change from being a "cool" ninth grader to a "loser" sophomore. The "sophies" were the ones that were often seen walking home from school or other activities. While the juniors and seniors were driving themselves to school, the sophomores had to resort to either mommy and daddy driving them in their family "sta-wag," walking, or taking the infamous U.T.A.

Dates were also a social problem for the sophomores; it was hard to look your best arriving with your mom. "Dances are the worst . . ." exclaimed sophomore Teresa Wray. "you feel so helpless asking your date to drive. The best technique is to use an older brother or sister as a chauffeur."

If one could only have been sixteen when one entered high school, a lot of embarrassment would have been saved. Being a sophomore was a hardship, but a necessary experience.

Above: Elaini Maragakis explains that her car broke down yesterday. Top: Kathryn Sackett gets picked up by her mommy.

CARS

Brooke Bender's "Mitsubishi" convertible. Above: Rick Hodgson's green Volkswagen Beetle.

A multi-colored menagerie of cars, trucks, vans, scooters, and motorcycles inhabited the east and west parking lots each day. Several vehicles sported dents and mangled fenders. Others, however, were brand new and without a scratch.

Most automobiles appeared to have been borrowed from mom or dad. These "loaner" cars ranged from Royden Christensen's Suburban to Jared Nelson's purple Lincoln Continental. Then there were the "Junkyard Jewels"; those were the kind of car that only a really desperate junior or senior would drive, like Joanne Berry's puke green Ford LTD.

The vehicles varied from red Mitsubishis to "green weenie" station wagons. Most students agreed that no matter how big and beastly a car looked, if it had gas in it, it was a good enough form of transportation.

THANK
YOU

THANK YOU

No one could possibly imagine the time we spent on this book except for a few respecting souls. If we had not had their support, this book would not be the same. We'd like to thank the following people for going out of their way to motivate us

First, our boss, the big bookman, BILL BAKER for putting up with our crazy ideas. WOLF KELM and everyone down at DON BLAIR STUDIOS for taking care of us no matter what kind of inconvenience we may have caused them. 'STEW' for his guidance and favors — vertical that is. Good luck at Valley, you gotta love it! XO The ADMINISTRATION for all of their support. Can we rent the room for the summer? To those S.B.O.'s that kept our spirits up and reassured us on how awesome this book would be. Go home now, it's over! Our nocturnal friends, the CUSTODIANS for taking care of our humble abode and keeping us company. To ROZ and JOEL RAPPAPORT & CONNIE and JEFF SILLIMAN for putting up with late nights and bad moods. To CHRIS BORG, MIKE MOORE, BRYCE DOMAN, BRIAN HUGHES, and RYAN SMITH (Tyrell Maxwell) for keeping us entertained. To BARRY BOWEN — Surprise! Surprise! Surprise! Maybe we got out of hand but we really do secretly love you. And now, last but definitely not least, our children

JONATHAN- Stephanie Farr called us last night looking for your phone #. We gave it to her, hope you don't mind! And hey Jon, you can take a swig of our drinks anytime. Now what church was that? Are Barries kosher? Sincerely though, you did a lot for us and the book

JEFF- Way to make a comeback! We're glad you were able to get your editor back below the belt. We liked being around you because you made us feel like we were funny

STEPHANIE- Well Miss Yellow Rose of Texas, we've appreciated all of your work at graphics and the time you gave up, when you could have been with a boy. Have you ever thought of joining a jousting team, murderer! (Poor Donald!)

KATIE- You are such a beast, but we love you- someone has to! So, are you still grounded or did you get to go to Mexico? We appreciate everything you've done

LORI- You came up with some pretty good captions. So is your roommate going to be "Spike" or "Molly"? In any case, we hope you have a celestial time

MELISSA- How are the twins? Name them after your two favorite people- US! Thanks for all of your time even though you spent half of it taking old boyfriends home (ha ha)

KIM- Way to stick up for women's lib! You're a real humanitarian for trying to stop the drought. You need a computer though. Thanks for taking some real pictures when we know men can't. We regret that you aren't regretting that you didn't regret ALISON- Check out this baby we've had! We did a @*#$ good job. Well Miss Naive, just feel free to call us mom, we can tell you anything. We've had some good times, so let's go to J.B.'s on a regular basis. How about those Oly men?

MARK- G'day mate! Don't worry you were down under for the most important deadline. Nice try to get a X mas tree. It would probably still be in the room! You're funny . . . but looks aren't everything! No one could replace you, thanks etc

MARLENE- Without you, we wouldn't have had multi-colored hair. You know you loved staying after. We will miss that thing you call a sneeze. Your efforts and creativity helped make this book what it is.

CHAD- Your time and effort was invaluable. You'll have to call us up and tell us some sweet little lies. All of those little goodies you brought helped us get through. Good luck!

JULIE S. We want, we want, we want . . . to go on Jet Star 2 with you! You will go! Who are you in love with this week . . . the jock, cowboy, or the R.M.? In between your cackles, you did a great job.

TODD- So, did track and your snowboard pay off? Where's our money? We gave her a hug and a kiss, that's $15.50. We'll always look back and remember . . . good luck next year

LAURIE- Who murdered Donald? We miss that little stress reliever. We'd like to offer you some advice, go to Hawaii for about 7 months and get better! Thanks for coming through no matter how sick you were

THERESA- So, what really went on in Braden's room?! Now see, all of your hard work has paid off and made a beautiful baby book

JULIE (B.Y.U.)- Well, we've broken you in. Thanks for all of your time and your friendship. Basically, we couldn't have done it without you. Looks like a celebration is in order! Dinner? Movie? Just some advice to leave you with: 1. Don't wear jeans on Sunday. 2. Carry a sewing kit at all times. 3. Learn how to cook. We care about B.Y.U. coeds. Thanks again. We'll be back

At this point we'd like to thank two very lovely girls for all of their hard work, dedication, and long hours. You know who you are! To say the least, we couldn't have done it without you. Thank you . . . we know!

*Soaring
on...*

Left Monique Jaenisch, Travis Healy, and Natalie Oswald practice bad body language. Above Chas Adams "I have to put up with this for only three dollars a day."

During the past few years, the school has been working on improving its body language. The students have been taught to be more aware of their posture and to avoid bad body language. This has been a successful effort, and the students are now more confident and self-assured. The school has also been working on improving its communication skills. The students have been taught to listen actively and to speak clearly. This has also been a successful effort, and the students are now better able to communicate with each other and with adults. The school has been working on these skills for a long time, and it is proud of the progress that has been made. Thanks for the pen!!

we tracked back now

ward - so long 3

Val,

Thank you for the pen!!
I'm
10 years old now, for the next 10 years
I'll be a
Call me during the Summer and well
keep in touch.

Val -

You're a real babe you can call me anytime. It was a great 3 years.
I still remember how much fun we had being in the water and hope to see you again soon.
Keep in touch.

Val,

you are the ultimate mother No Kabbiesyou have helped me through some pretty tough times you are the ultimate smiley friend and I treasure this friendship.
I hope it can last forever. I hope that you will keep in touch with me and never give up

Love
Jeff Barker (1011 son)

Lal
hey beautiful
how is your love life
well it is not satisfying call me because your answer I have been totally in love with since I first saw you 3/4. But you are beautiful so stay in touch throughout the summer have fun at school next year
Love ya always
Jim McKinn

Hey
 You glad
 You are
 I had classes with you
 all good one
 you
 love
 Brent
 up out a friend
 and I know
 the
 you will go a lot of places
 with your parents
 really hope that
 could see
 you before
 the college
 year because your college
 would be the same without seeing
 you call me seriously

will be seriously

Va

you are there

you're there such a good friend I love

you so much

I'll be with you

everywhere

3 YEARS PASSED SO
QUICKLY THE YEARS
WE HAVE HAD SOME REAL
TWO TIMES BUT
THE TIMES! BUT
HEY, YOU ARE AWESOME -

YOU'RE THE BEST FRIEND I HAVE EVER HAD
LOVE YOU
EVERYWHERE! HAVE A GREAT DAY

I know you are the best friend I have to you Love

VAL-EE-1

YOU HAVE BEEN A GREAT FRIEND
AND YOU LIGHT MY LAMP WITH MY CANDLES, HAVE A CARE FREE, GIVE EASIER PARTIES,
KEEP IN TOUCH, ILL
SEE YOU LATER,
MURPHY

Hey Mount-her,

This year while you were spending all of your time with some Guy (I can't remember his name) anyway I was lusting after your gorgeous body. I am not kidding you have become very good looking. Remember that night we went out (actually we went out twice) last summer? I stayed at your house very late. I wanted to jump your bones extremely bad (And that's no joke) I hope you read this and see me again. You are totally cool and I've enjoyed you since Sophomore year. You'll be very successful in the future, I know it! I ~~was~~ am glad I got to finally say these things my heart was bursting with the love of a proud dove (Pretty poetic, huh?) Have a great one!

Love,
Robert M. Barnes

Val,

You were a spark to all of the 3 years at skyline. Your personality is so nice and cute. I love you for it. Remember Hobbit Land?

It was awesome. I'm so glad that Highschool is now over. even though, it was fun while it lasted. It's party time now!

You are so fun to do things with. I hope that we do something over the summer. I think we should. - I'm sorry that my writing is so bad but what do you expect. I'm going to college. Remember Skyline and our fun forever. I will.

Have fun with life and kick rear in wherever you do.

Love your friend,
Trevor Pasmann.

HE VAL -
YOU'RE COOL
I'M SURE GU'D I
MET YOU THIS YER
DETAIL MARKETING
WAS ALOT A FUN YOU
ARE A GREAT PROBLEM
LISTENER. I SURE
GAVE YOU ALOT. YOU
DID TYPE MY WHOLE
RESEARCH PAPER SO
DONT LET ME FORGET.
LET'S DO LOTS THIS SUMMER. I'LL GIVE YOU A CALL AT CARRIES HOME SO
DONT GO TO TEXAS
WITHOUT TELLING
ME. I LOVE YOU VAL.
TO BAD YOU GRADUATE

Val -
I've only ~~so~~ really met you once - remember up at Gm? The when you were going up to the mountains to roast the old mannekins - Anyhow, here we go into the world. May all your dreams come true &
may you have a wonderful day & may you have a wonderful life.
I love you
Val
Dad

Val -
WANT TO PRESENT
ME INTO NOTHING
You a lovely person,
AND I'M NOT ENJOYING
YOU. ALOT SO GIVE
THAT WE WERE FRIENDS
THIS YEAR. I WILL NEVER FORGET THE
GOOD TIMES WE HAD.
DAD JUST THINK
ONE FRIENDSHIP SHOULD
BECAUSE THE ONLY
TIME Dad would talk
TO ME WAS WHEN YOU
NEEDED TO COPY AN ASSIGNMENT IN PERSONAL FINANCE (was there that was a HARD class)
You're a good friend

I love you
Dad

VAL - I'M GOING TO MISS WORKING AT SMITHS W/ YOU.
YOU'RE TOTALLY AWESOME
I'M GOING TO MISS SEEING YOUR SMILING FACE EVERYDAY
WE'LL HAVE TO GO HANG OUT
THIS SUMMER. HAVE A GOOD TIME THIS COMING YEAR
SEE YA
PAUL JERSON

VAL -
IT WAS FUN
IN WORD PROCESSOR
I HOPE YOU HAVE A GOOD SUMMER
AND SAY HI
TO GUY FOR ME
(IF YOU STILL LIKE HIM)

Um-

The years have been great & the time is short. But may life treat you with success & with happiness.
You are a special person
& have many special attributes. Use them wisely.

Love Brent Hanley

Val,

You're really cool and I'm glad I got to know you over the last three years. Seminary with you was fun but what's this about getting your diploma and then not going.
I hope you have a great summer and don't mess around with Guy too much. How are things going anyway?
Anyway keep in touch and good luck next year.

Jeff Lunn

VAL,

THIS IS LONG & WORTH READING!
I WILL BE UP AT SMITHS A LOT
TO SEE YOU. I LOVE YOU.
YOUR FRIEND
